SCOPE AND VOLUME OF STUDY

Study regarding the International Practices on Extension of Production Sharing Contracts (PSCs) or Similar Contracts awarded by Governments for E & P activities in upstream Hydrocarbon Sector.

1. Background

There are currently about 37 Producing Fields in India operating under the PSC regime consisting of 28 Medium and Small Sized Fields earlier discovered by ONGC & OIL, and 9 Fields resulting from oil/gas discoveries made in Pre-NELP and NELP blocks. In addition, there are currently about 185 blocks under PSC, which are at exploration stage and commercial production of oil/gas is yet to commence. It has been observed that there are wide variations in different PSCs regarding provisions for extension of the PSCs/Mining Leases beyond the Contract period, in case the economic life of the field is not over within the stipulated PSC time period.

2. Purpose of the proposed Study

The Ministry of Petroleum & Natural Gas is considering to bring out a Policy which will lay down the guidance for extension in the tenure of PSCs beyond their respective contract periods, in case the economic life of the producing fields in these PSCs is not yet over at the time of expiry of PSCs. For this purpose, the international practices regarding extension in the tenures of PSCs and other similar E & P Contracts need to be studied and examined. It is proposed that such studies relating to international practices may be carried out by a reputed Consultancy Agency.

3. Scope of Work

To compile the position from at least 15 major Oil & Gas producing countries regarding the international practices on the issue of extension of Production Sharing Contracts or similar E & P Contracts beyond the expiry date of these Contracts in the upstream hydrocarbon sector.

4. Deliverables

The Final Report on the above studies may be submitted in 3 (three) hard and in 1 (one) soft copy to DGH within a period of 15 days from the date of award of the Contract.
